WASHINGTON CITY

Callers at the White House

WASHINGTON Aug 18—There was an unusually large crowd of visitors at the White House this forenoon among them many Senators and Representatives who called to take leave of the President

Statue of Gen Thomas

Senator Morrill and Representative Holman chairman of the committee of the two Houses on public buildings and grounds who with the Secretary of War are a committee to select a site for the statue of Gen Thomas to be erected by the Society of the Army of the Cumberland have chosen the Stanton circle at the intersection of Maryland and Massachusetts avenues northeast of the capital As this location is in a comparatively unimproved and little frequented part of the city an effort will be made by officers of the society to have the location of the statue removed to some site in the northern or northwestern section

Change of Federal Officials in Mississippi.

The President to day at the instance of the Republican Congressmen of Mississippi made an extensive change of the Federal officers in that State including the marshal for the southern district and the principal postmasters These Congressmen say that the new appointments will have the effect of reconciling all differing elements and strengthen the party with the prospect of securing electoral votes for Hayes and Wheeler

California Swamp Lands

Secretary Chandler has under consideration an application of the State of California for certification to the State of swamp lands which are situated on the Sacramento river within the limits of lands recently claimed by the Manuel Diaz claimants which grant was rejected The question is raised whether the act of 1850 granting swamp and overflowed lands to the State attaches to any lands which were considered withdrawn from the public domain by reason of claims for Spanish grants. In the Newhall and Sangur case it was held by the Supreme court that railroad grants did not attach to such lands. The department is now in doubt whether that decision affects also the rights of the State to swamp lands In order that it may be argued fairly before decision the Solicitor of the Department has formally requested Britton & Gray to make an oral argument as early as possible in support of the State's right to the lands. Notice will also be sent to attorneys representing interests adverse to those of the state. This question will probably not affect the rights of the present holders of swamp lands who have bought in good faith from the state where the Department has already certified the lands to the State Notwithstanding the fact that most of the swamp land on the bay of San Francisco and the principal rivers have at one time been claimed to be within Spanish grants the solicitor says he shall probably hold that all cases where good faith is shown titles raised on the faith of the acts must remain unmolested This is the principle upon which he has modified his ruling in relation to sections of indemnity school lands.

Allowance for the San Francisco Postoffice Increased.

The Postoffice Department has agreed to increase the allowance for the San Francisco postoffice $5,000

Indemnity School Lands.

The Commissioner of the General Land Office has finally decided to allow indemnity school land in place of school lands lost by the establishment of Indian reservations.

Why Representative Meade will not Serve on the Chinese Commission.

Representative Meade, of New York has notified the late Speaker of the House that he will not go to California to serve on the commission to investigate the Chinese question. The reason is privately given that Representative Piper who has charge of the appropriation to defray expenses would not advance to Mr Meade $800 for expenses The funds in Piper's hands amount to $37 000 He refused to advance Meade more than $400 This leaves Mr Piper alone on the House committee The three Senators say they will all be ready to work at the appointed time.

The Sunday Mail Service to Continue.

The superintendent of the railroad mail service says that he has recently had an interview with the officers of the railroad companies carrying the mails between Chicago and Omaha, and he is satisfied that they will agree to continue the Sunday mails between these places notwithstanding the failure of Cong[illegible] to provide extra compensation therefor The companies will receive the ordinary compensation for such mail service This action will prevent San Francisco from losing one mail each week.

Faithful Officer Rewarded.

WASHINGTON, Aug 18.—Isaac Frohm for 25 years principal engrossing clerk of the House of Representatives has been removed by the clerk of the House, owing to late retrenchment legislation

Cabinet Consultation.

CHICAGO, Aug 18.—The Tribune's Washington special says the Cabinet held a consultation to day over all business demanding attention before the President's departure The President manifests a lively interest in the pending campaign and gives very close attention to all the details necessary to rigidly enforcing all the provisions of the national election law Secretary Taft will have the laboring oar in this matter and he is actively at work preparing the machinery by which to make this law effective in the whole country

Avery's Friends Discouraged.

The friends of Avery and McKee, the Chicago and Milwaukee whisky convicts are entirely discouraged to-night as they have been led to believe no pardon will be granted in any quarter at present.

The President off for Long Branch.

NEW YORK, Aug 18—The Tribune's Washington special says the President will leave for Long Branch to-morrow and remain at the seaside much later than usual He complains to his friends of great fatigue and he has long been anxious to get away from the capital Few can understand the amount of labor and fatigue the President has encountered during the past nine months He has been constantly under pressure and in addition to nearly four hundred members and Senators to whom he is always expected to be at home he has had an unusual amount of executive business of a routine nature. The past few months have been according to his own statement made recently to a friend, among the most fatiguing of his life Not a day save Sundays, has there been but that from one hundred to five hundred persons have called at the White House.

THE SIOUX CAMPAIGN.

News from Gen. Terry.

ST PAUL, AUG 18—Capt. Collins of the 17th Infantry, arrived at Bismarck from Fort Buford last night He fails to confirm the squaw's reports of a recent battle between the Indians and the Infantry forces. He comes from Terry's column two days out he arrived at Buford on Monday evening A courier who arrived at the supply department at the mouth of Rosebud on the 11th inst. reports Terry's command met the head of Gen Crook's command early on the 10th Crook's men were following a large Indian trail in the direction of Powder river On a short consultation of Gens Terry and Crook the commands were united and proceeded on the trail Crook was following The 5th Infantry was detailed from Terry's column and ordered back to the stockade with instructions to take the 40 000 rations and embark on the steamer Far West and patrol the Yellowstone river as far as the mouth of Powder river and ascertain whether the Indians had succeeded in crossing the Yellowstone If not they are to prevent them In the meantime, Terry will come down on them with the combined commands and force a battle It is not positively known whether the Indians are on Tongue river or Powder river Five hundred Crows volunteered to join Gen Terry they were at once rationed and forwarded to him they will be sent down the north side of the river with Gen Miles command of the 5th Infantry

Troops for Terry and Crook

The Inter Ocean Sioux special says Seven companies of 11th Infantry ordered to points on the upper rivers arrived from [illegible] Two companies under Capt Sanderson arrived here to day and went west by the Dakota Southern Others will follow closely The Indians above are quiet and no trouble is anticipated now

The Far West Fired on by Indians

ST PAUL Aug 18.—A Bismarck special to the Pioneer Press says the steamer Far West was fired into a few miles below Fort Buford on Tuesday by a party of 30 Indians without material effect

The Indians recently ran off a herd of 400 beef cattle from the Black Hills killing all but one A large number of horses have also been run off The boys killed one Indian and his head will be preserved in alcohol and sent to Washington when opportunity presents Grey Eagle's scalp taken by Dave Campbell was sent to the Bismarck Tribune by steamer Josephine

Message from Sitting Bull

Medicine Cloud and his party belonging to Fort Peck agency whom Maj Mitchell Indian agent at Fort Peck sent to Sitting Bull with a message on the 27th of last month have returned to the agency. The message sent by Maj Mitchell to Sitting Bull was to the effect that he desired him to come and visit Fort Peck hoping such a step would result in his returning to the reservation and ceasing from hostilities against the whites Sitting Bull replied July [illegible] tell him I am coming before long to his post to trade Tell him I did not commence, I am getting old that I did not want to fight but the white rush in me and I am [illegible] myself that [illegible] the soldiers stationed on the [illegible] I would with my people would have been there before that if I was assured of the protection of the Great Father I would go to Fort Peck for the purpose of making peace Four other chiefs want the Black Hills at [illegible] and we will make peace. Medicine Cloud numbers the hostiles as consisting of bands Uncpapas Tetons Minneconjous [illegible] Ogallalas Cheyennes and Black Feet of the latter but 30 lodges He says he does not remember the names of many of the leading chiefs Four Horns and Black Moon are Uncpapas Each nation has two or three chiefs present and they all insist that they did not intend to fight the whites but the Santees commenced the trouble some years ago and the whites crowded them back on to them so they took it up He says also that there [illegible] Yank[illegible] quites [illegible] with them He estimates [illegible] as consisting of from 8000 to 10 000 fighting men The Santees at the Cheyennes are the [illegible] There are no white men co operating with them They have plenty of guns and [illegible] He thinks they get ammunition from agencies.

The Burning Crow [illegible] beyond the Black Hills. They capture [illegible] during the fight [illegible] few mules The Blackfeet Indians made many presents consisting of horses etc to the warriors to induce them to retire from the conflict but after accepting the offering there was no retreat [illegible] They watch continually for whites hunting to attack but fight hard in their own defense They are living entirely on meat which they find very hard to procure owing to the close proximity of the whites Crook's army is now on Tongue river south of the Yellowstone distance 1½ days ride The Indians are in a constant state of alarm They estimate that in the fight of the Little Big Horn the total number of Indians was 31 and his estimate of our loss corresponds with what has heretofore been published He saw five dead Indians in camp dressed in citizens clothes The horses sacrificed around the tent were the property of the dead men and were killed in accordance with their religion The letter concludes While I am writing a large party of hostile Indians have just arrived upon the opposite bank of the river including the sons of the chiefs Four Horns and Black Moon and are now engaged in telegraphing across the river by signs to the Indians on this side but what their subject is has not yet transpired.

General Sherman does not Believe the Indians get Arms from Agencies.

WASHINGTON Aug 18—An officer of the Interior Department had an interview with Gen Sherman to day on the subject of the complaints of the public to the effect that the hostile Sioux obtain supplies of arms and ammunition from the Indian post-traders at the agencies or reservations. Gen Sherman was asked whether he believed it was true that supplies were obtained at the agencies. He replied that he did not think it was true but added that the Indians no doubt would be able to procure arms from other traders as long as they had buffalo robes and furs to sell It is generally understood that men not connected with the agencies make a practice of selling arms to the Indians at various points on the Upper Missouri and northwestern territories in exchange for furs realizing by such trade enormous profits as the Indians are willing to pay large prices for arms.

Commissioners to Treat with the Sioux.

WASHINGTON Aug 18—Secretary Cameron has appointed the following gentlemen as commissioners to treat with the Sioux as provided for in the Indian appropriation bill passed by Congress H C Balls of Iowa Geo W Money of Pennsylvania, A. A Boone of Ohio Newton Edmunds of California Bishop P Whipple, of Minnesota A S Gaylord of Massachusetts Assistant Secretary of the Interior S. D Hinman Interpreter Chas M Hindly of Washington Secretary Gaylord will act as legal adviser to the commission and will represent the Interior Department The Commission will start at once and will meet at Omaha on the 25th inst.

Indian Recruits for the Sioux War.

WASHINGTON Aug 18—The Commissioner of Indian Affairs has given permission to Gen Sheridan to raise 1 000 Pawnee recruits for the Sioux war

BY ATLANTIC CABLE.

The Servian War.

BELGRADE, Aug 18—Prince Milan has received from several, if not from all the powers, congratulations on the birth of an heir, all all of which contain expressions leaving no doubt in the mind of the prince that the powers are desirous of seeing an end of a war which is dangerous to the general peace of Europe The result is Servia is ready to treat for peace, but will not consent to the deposition of Prince Milan, or sacrifice of any territory nor will she submit to Turkish administration The Servians are defending Milan Ovatz, and if it falls the Turkish advance on Belgrade via Zumandria could not be prevented To-day the Turks attacked the outposts near Bolina and were repulsed They attacked the Drina army yesterday near Badovinatz and were repulsed with great loss

A correspondent writing from Phillipopolis, under date of Aug. 11th, says The condition of the Turkish army at Nish is deplorable and starvation is threatening The country around does not afford supplies of forage Along the road, between Nish and Sofia the villages are all abandoned The army will soon be obliged to move into Servian territory for supplies Through the efforts of Schuyler, of the American legation the release of prisoners except those in the first category has been ordered

A dispatch from Belgrade says the engagement at Bardinovatz was a mere skirmish

Prince Milan yesterday gave audience to the consuls of six powers separately. A strong pressure was brought to bear in favor of peace or an armistice, but the prince refused The report is untrue that Belgrade is being prepared for a siege

London Money Market.

LONDON Aug 18—Silver nominally at 52½ and market flat. Bullion gone into Bank of England on deposit to-day £53 000

Liverpool Grain Market.

LIVERPOOL Aug 18—A leading grain circular says the excessive heat which is rapidly maturing grain crops in the north of England and Scotland with an increasing quantity of new wheat brought forward by farmers will cause a further depression this week to the extent in most markets of fully 15 per quarter The demand is rather improving with the increased quantity but there is no change in values on cargoes off coast, several of which have been taken for the Continent. With the rain to-day giving less assurance of settled weather millers have bought wheat more freely and the declining tendency of the past few days has given place to a steadier increase during the day and closing nearly at Tuesday's quotations There have been moderate transactions in flour at previous rates Corn has receded 3d and a good quality of mixed American has found buyers

NEVADA.

Silver Bullion Shipped

SULTAN MURAD—Dr Karpokone the Sultan's physician writes the following account of the state of his sovereign's health to the correspondent of the Messager d'[illegible] The Sultan is lost He has delirium tremens I attribute this to the abuse of intoxicating liquors and in particular to that of absinthe which he drank habitually before his accession to the throne when he lived at Pera to his debaucheries and his depraved tastes to the remorse which constantly haunts him and reminds him of his uncle poisoned and his family massacred and to his fear of seeing the Russians enter Constantinople or the Mussulman fanatics invade his palace His faculties are dulled he is almost imbecile his head [illegible] he has lost his hair and yet he constantly calls for raki for preserves and for the ladies of the harem He does not sleep and his malady gets worse every day The abuse of baths has weakened his limbs to such an extent that he suffers from the slightest touch and sinks down as soon as he attempts to move

In 1815 a shrewd Yankee named Slight instead of having his fortune told married the clairvoyant If he expected to command the future and the fortune for himself it was a losing speculation for he died in poverty His theory however has been justified for an English solicitor has obtained the marriage in Portland and affirms that by a will left by Sir Arthur Stewart who was killed in the battle of Waterloo Slight was the heir to breweries at Burton on Trent now worth $4 000 000 The Yankee's eldest son will now inherit a princely fortune The only moral that can be drawn smacks of Hibernicism If you want to get rich, ask your father to marry a fortune-teller

GOV. HENDRICKS is first and always a demagogue He never revealed his character more perfectly than when he gave the Saratoga correspondent of the Philadelphia Times a synopsis of his letter of acceptance allowing it to appear four days before that of Gov Tilden Of course he denied that he had given it to the correspondent but the letter itself vindicates the correspondent for it shows that in many instances he gave the precise language of the document in his dispatch Furthermore it can be stated without fear of contradiction that the correspondent not only saw the manuscript but it was read to him by Hendricks himself The way it came about was simple enough The correspondent showing an admirable conception of Hendricks' character wrote him a note telling him that if he hoped to carry Pennsylvania he would be wise to give his letter to the leading newspaper of Pennsylvania or words to that effect The shot took effect The Indiana Governor invited the correspondent to his room and handed him the letter On second thought it occurred to him that it would not look well to have the letter appear verbatim till that of Gov Tilden had been published so he had the manuscript put aside and then dictated an abstract of it which the correspondent took down in his presence The publication covered the correspondent with glory and covered the would be Vice President with something very different

INDEPENDENCE Aug 16 1876

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

Will you allow still another correspondent to have a say on the above topic? I have read with some care all that I have seen on the subject and must confess that so far as plans presented by your correspondents are considered the matter stands very much as it did at the beginning of the controversy There is just cause for much feeling, much complaint and need for prompt energetic and intelligent action Writing and reading newspaper articles will never remedy the evil or give the farmers cheap transportation without which their prospects are indeed not flattering There is more real cause for alarm than is generally appreciated by the farming community Never was a more truthful sentence uttered than that (financially) corporations have no souls Every poor man and every working man feels it at all times and under all circumstances But what to do is the question which the farmers of the Wallamet valley desire to have answered

Capital appears to be as much an acknowledged king as cotton once was in the slave States and when capital is concentrated in large quantities and controlled by shrewd men—such is usually the case—it is really a most formidable enemy to the laboring classes. But this does not answer the question

While associated or concentrated capital is a king, associated or concentrated labor is an emperor My plan is to advise every farmer in the valley to co-operate with every other farmer Let, for instance the State Grange form the nucleus and every subordinate grange be a correspondent, then let every farmer or mechanic who exports contribute a small per centage of his grain or his labor form a general pool of everything from which to create a fund, then build two or three or more river steamers, and let them not be owned by any man or corporation of men but by every producer in the land Every man should be a stockholder in a co operative sense and then every man would feel an interest in the success of the enterprise I totally disagree with your correspondent, who says it is impossible to compete with the present transportation monopoly as now fortified It is not only not impossible, but it is both possible and feasible, and that too at a comparatively trifling outlay on the part of the producers All they need is co-operation, pluck and brains. Build your boats and carry your own grain It is also stated by some that the locks are sealed against the people This I do not believe but grant that it is true, even that is not such a great matter as at first appears Ten per cent of the grain and stock produce of one year in the Wallamet valley would convert the 'basin' into a locked canal. Then who has the advantages?

Again your correspondent says that should an opposition be put on the river the present fortified monopoly would at once reduce freights to so low a figure that ruin to the opposition would be inevitable. Suppose every exporter and importer held a pecuniary interest in the opposition, who would be most likely to strike their colors first? But should the monopoly reduce freights to a low figure—an unremunerative one—let the farmers quietly tie up their boats and patronize the monopoly until it again began to extort, then enter the lists again A small portion of this kind of sauce would force the monopoly into a perpetual contract binding themselves and their successors never to charge above an agreed rate of fare or freight, and this is all the people ask Let the Grange take hold of the matter in earnest, and go unitedly to work, and my word for it this will be the last year the farmers will ever be oppressed by extortionate freights.

GENERAL NOTES

A new novel, "The Golden Butterfly," speaks of 'Grant at Gettysburg' Author English

The Black Hills Pioneer, published at Deadwood, announced the Democratic ticket as Hancock and O'Conor and eulogized it highly It is not likely that if its informant was scalped on the way home the Pioneer went into mourning

Captain Shaw of the London Fire Brigade, says it is absolutely necessary for the safety of the metropolis to bring up his force to 1 000 men Ten years ago the insurable value of London was £900 000 000 sterling, it has now risen to £1,440,000 000

According to a calculation published in a French financial journal, the population of France at the present rate will only double in 1,380 years Germany requires only 98 years to double its population, Austria, 62 Denmark 73 Great Britain, 63, Sweden, 89, and Norway 51

A backwoods minister having alluded to an anchor in his discourse, described its use in the following lucid manner An anchor is a large iron instrument that sailors carry to sea with them, and when a storm arises they take it on shore and fasten it to a tree and that holds the ship till the storm blows over'

According to a London paper, tight dresses are nowhere to be seen in such perfection as at Lord's cricket grounds during one of the public school matches At the Eton and Harrow match he says many ladies were rash enough to recline on the greensward, and their frantic efforts to rise from their recumbent position were a source of great amusement to the bystanders A certain duchess behaved with the greatest self possession under these somewhat humiliating circumstances Finding she could not rise in the ordinary way she flung herself on all fours and by throwing her weight alternately to right and left finally succeeded in gaining her perpendicular

The Omaha Bee says 'A remarkable case of equine sagacity occurred in this city yesterday morning A horse owned by a Mr Brown, machinist that had been shod for over two years past in the shop of P Pederson Cuming street between Twentieth and Twenty first, came into the shop alone and held up his foot, indicating thereby that there was a shoe off and that he wanted to be shod The proprietor understood the situation at once and complied with the request putting on two shoes which upon examination the horse was found to have lost It is a very nice story but if the horse had two shoes off why didn't he being intelligent hold up two feet eh?'

BRITISH COLUMBIA

Mr Smithe has been re elected representative of Cowichan district in the local House

Nineteen guns were fired at Victoria on the arrival of the Amethyst with the vice regal party

British Columbians wear Dufferin gaiters Dufferin neck ties and Dufferin collars, and drink Dufferin cocktails

Moody Nelson & Co of Burrard Inlet, have thus far this season collected at their mill 1 800 000 feet of logs

Dispensation was granted to all lodges of Odd Fellows within the province to turn out in regalia to receive Earl Dufferin

From recent private advices received from Burrard Inlet we learn that the splendid ship Pacific Slope built last season at Coos Bay is lying at Moody's loading long lumber for a foreign port

A vessel is now being built at Hastings mill, Burrard Inlet of the following dimensions Length of keel 220 feet beam 42 feet, depth of hold 36 feet She is being built for foreign trade

The New Westminster Herald an opposition organ says Mr G M Sproat will be appointed third Indian Land Arbitrator or umpire We believe the selection would be a very good one, as Mr Sproat appears to be possessed of a good deal of energy and decision

OREGON

Corvallis has the nucleus for water works.

There is no smallpox on the Klamath reservation

Oregon Annual Conference of the M E Church will convene at Albany next Monday

Postal Agent Underwood is investigating the matter of the late stage robbery in southern Oregon

Jackson county's portion of the interest on the irreducible school fund for the year 1876 amounts to $1 466 14 in coin and $683 78 in currency

Jacob Ollefer after a short but lively career as tailor at Jacksonville has absquatulated, leaving several creditors to mourn his untimely departure

Richard Hurley an assayer and metallurgist, reports that the Capital Gold and Silver Mining Co's lead on the Santiam assays $36 in silver $1 90 in gold and 780 pounds of lead per ton of ore

A lot of worthless Indians encamped near Corvallis have been in a row for a week, the only results being that two squaws were pretty badly injured one having an arm broken, and the other with a terrible gash in her head

We would like to know if there are any people in the valley towns who have not gone to the mountains Upwards of 500 items noting the departure of people for the mountains have appeared in our Wallamet exchanges

Under the direction of G W C T, W. R. Dunbar, Hon E. E. Fanning of Washington county, organized a lodge of Good Templars on the 5th inst., at Cornelius, with thirty two charter members Miss Emma Smith is W. C. T. and Wm Garwood Lodge Deputy.

The Jacksonville Times says "The Gallice Creek Mining Co sent a quantity of ore to be assayed at San Francisco on the day of the stage robbery but the robbers made away with it, no doubt thinking they were getting away with that much gold dust out of the express box"

The Albany Democrat learns from Captain D W Baughman, of the steamer Bonanza, that the pile driver and wing dam crowd are at work on the Buena Vista bar, and by the 1st of September they expect to have the dam finished so that low water will be of no farther trouble at that place.

Last Thursday Albert Woods, step son of Mr. Dow, of Cornelius, aged 14 years, while out on the mountains a few miles above Quick's mill, in Washington county, on the west side of the creek, picking berries, separated from the rest of the party and got lost, and was found by Mr Lafferty and others near the Markee place, having been lost about 48 hours, and without food, except berries, for 53 hours.

The Hillsboro Independent learns that the house of Mr Clemmens, two miles below the Harris bridge, caught fire on Sunday, the 13th, about 2 P M, and was destroyed, with all its contents. Mr. Clemmens estimates his loss at $2 000, consisting mostly of household goods and valuable papers. Cause, supposed to be a defective flue Mr Clemmens was at this place at the time, and his wife and two or three little children were at the meeting at Harris' bridge. The children at home had just started a fire, so as to be ready for the folks when they should return from meeting. When the fire was discovered one of the older girls went up stairs to save some valuables, and when she went to return down stairs, the roof fell into the stairway, and she jumped down, scorching her somewhat. But little was saved from the flames.

THE TERRITORIES.

Seattle uses 185,000 feet of gas per month.

The hoodlums have broken out afresh at Seattle, and the authorities are urged by the local press to do something in the matter.

The lime kiln at On[illegible] Island, which has been shut down for the last month, started up the other day, and is now running at full blast, with a prospect of a large fall and winter business.

A woman walked 15 miles to find her boy who was supposed to have run away to [illegible] tle. She outwalked Weston, making the 15 miles in two and a half hours, according to the Intelligencer.

Bears have been very troublesome on White river, W. T., this season, having killed for the farmers in that locality about 70 hogs, Mr. Smith having lost 25 and Mr. Hughes 30; others have lost several each.

The body of a man identified as that of Wm. Hacker, was found in a back lot in Seattle on the 15th inst. The man had been dead five or six weeks. The jury could not find from what cause he died.

A Mr Fishbrook was struck violently in the abdomen by a bolt of timber which had caught in a running circular saw at Freeport a few days ago. At first he suffered but little, but inflammation of the bowels set in and it is feared he will die.

The keel for another vessel—a barkentine this time—was laid at Port Ludlow last week. The size will be 140 feet in length, 34 feet beam and 15 feet depth of hold. She will be copper fastened throughout, and coppered on the stocks. She is being built for Capt. Charles Tack

A lottery man of Seattle, in order to get around the law, has purchased a thousand acres of land, which he has divided into twenty thousand lots, and these lots will be the prizes. A person drawing a prize will have the option offered him of selling it at once for cash or of retaining the real estate if he choose.

J D Burch, of Goose creek, Idaho, recently had an affray with some Mexicans, in which one of the latter was accidentally shot. There being no law officer nearer, Mr Burch rode 200 miles to give himself up to the sheriff at Silver City The sheriff would not arrest him and he went to the prosecuting attorney, who also refused to take any steps in the matter

The Intelligencer gives some of the best time on record made by the Puget Sound lumber fleet, round trips, from the mills to San Francisco and return From Discovery—bark Almatia, 19 days, from Blakely—bark Fremont, 22 days, and bark Martha Rideout, 19½ days from Ludlow—bark Forest Queen, 17½ days from Madison—bark Tidal Wave, 21¼ days, from Tacoma—ship Dashing Wave, 21¼ days, from Victoria—bark Naramissic, 17 days.

POLITICS IN THE SCHOOL

There are complaints that the public school course is overloaded with studies which, useful enough elsewhere, are hardly of practical value therein We have no sympathy for the blatant enthusiasm manifested over mere rote knowledge of natural sciences and the arts in our schools The course is a short one it gives the only education received by thousands, and it is not wise to impede it with branches not absolutely necessary to practical life The system has countless faults—and in bettering it, it may be that educators should sometimes study subtraction instead of addition As for natural sciences and industrial arts the places in which to study those are special technical schools, thoroughly fitted splendidly manned by working teachers and above all free Too many of these we cannot have so long as they are efficient There is one addition, however which might be made without detriment to the school course—the study in various forms of political science There is a great deal of sentimental nonsense talked concerning the typical large-minded and patriotic American youth The truth is that there lives no such being American boys read newspapers but not the politics in them—which may be judicious They are attracted by the drum and fife of political meetings but to them it is all delightful noise and no ideas In country villages they lounge sometimes with their elders in the store but the wisdom they acquire thus is chiefly remarkable for poverty and shallowness They are ignorant of the formation of their government, the most effective motors in its history the provisions and action of the constitution They have no training whatever for their political duties duties certainly not the least important of their lives The average teacher [illegible] no interest in practical politics, and from one year's end to another never opens his or her lips on the subject. We do not advise plunging the pupil into dry essay and diffuse [illegible]tation, but surely time can be found for a little study which shall be thorough and a reasonable amount of apt, simple, and inte[illegible] explanation There is no lack of texts, and a teacher who has brains and energy will see that the study is not perfunctory Future Congresses would not be the worse for such instruction —N Y Times

NOTES FROM THE CENTENNIAL.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 6, 1876.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

To "do" the Centennial is more of a [illegible] than one bargains for when he starts off [illegible] his comfortable home, some four [illegible] miles away. In the first place there is the sea voyage of about four days, [illegible] most travelers; [illegible] the cars for seven days through [illegible] One can, however, rest [illegible] and break the monotony of the [illegible] by spending a day or two in the [illegible] the West. Chicago has [illegible] beautifying its public parks and [illegible] "Boulevards," [illegible] much frequented [illegible] elegantly laid out, and [illegible] of all who visit the city.

After tarrying here for two days, [illegible] continued their voyage [illegible]ward, [illegible] over at

SATURDAY MORNING, AUGUST 19, 1876.

THE GUARANTY FOR REFORM.

It has come to be generally understood that the glittering generalities on the subject of reform which are invariably inserted in party platforms amount to nothing. It is likewise generally admitted by intelligent persons that a party organization is about the worst instrument in the world with which to carry reform and retrenchment resolutions into effect. These organizations are not usually controlled and managed by men who have no interest in them except a patriotic interest in the good order and prosperity of the people, and in an honest and efficient administration of public affairs. As a means of crystalizing public sentiment and bringing into harmonious and successful co-operation all those who entertain similar views upon political questions, the party organization is useful, and, the way such matters go at present, indispensable. But a power behind the throne, it is certain to exercise a baleful influence if it is stronger than the throne.

Both the political parties, in their national conventions, issued their declarations of principles, and both talked of reform; but neither presented any plan or detail of operations. A coach-and-six might be driven through either of them. The Democratic candidates, after thirty-six days of deliberation, supplemented the platform of their party with their own pronunciamentos, in which they left their position on this vital question as indefinite and vague as it had been by the convention. What then is to be expected of them, in case their party should succeed in the election? Nothing but a subserviency to their party [illegible]. They are both partisans. One is a perfect type of the Burbon politician, and the other a [illegible] tactician in party politics and a perfect master of the art of dissembling. Mr. Tilden has gained some reputation above Mr. Hendricks, by a career of pretense and shams, but the veil is rent now and the country is beginning to understand how little there is in all his great stage efforts as a reformer. The ordeal of a nomination for the Presidency has proven too severe for him, and he has presented himself to the country no longer as a reformer but as a shuffler, who can write columns, if not volumes, without saying anything upon which the mind can seize with any degree of certainty. He uses words to conceal his [illegible] upon the most momentous issues of the hour, or else to conceal the fact that he had no ideas on those issues. His election would simply place the government in the hands of a Democratic regency [illegible] Tilden would be. He prom[illegible] that ordinary intelligence [illegible] hold of, and he betrays all the [illegible] his long letter such an ob[illegible] on to the discipline of his party as leaves no room to expect anything of him in case he should be elected, [illegible] unquestioning obedience to the [illegible] of party managers.

[illegible] the difference between the Democratic and the Republican [illegible]. Both Hayes and Wheeler [illegible] characters are a guaranty [illegible] the abuses of party domination. Mr. Wheeler has been tried, in a place where any but a strong man would have [illegible] and his [illegible] above party and stood [illegible]. Mr. Hayes has been [illegible] as one of those men [illegible] party considerations could [illegible] the line of his convictions of duty. And in his letter of acceptance he [illegible] to the point, leaving the [illegible] verbiage of the convention which nominated him and defining his position and purposes with a clearness that admits of no misunderstanding. There is no room for a double interpretation of his language. In the character of the candidates lies the security of the people for the performance of their pledges with reference to reform. Hayes' character is exhibited in a long course of public life and as illustrated in his letter, when compared with that of Mr. Tilden leaves no alternative to any one who believes administrative reform to be the paramount issue of the campaign, but to support the Ohio statesman instead of the New York politician.

IN RE CONSISTENCY.

The Democratic organ thinks we show inconsistency in approving the appointment of [illegible] Besser for city assessor, for, says the organ, Mr. Besser's "views" on politics have been different from those of the OREGONIAN. We were not aware of any such difference of "views"; but that is wholly immaterial. Mr. Besser's political opinions have nothing to do with it. The assessorship of this city does not involve the question of political "views," it involves the question of acquaintance with the property of the city and its value, and it will hardly be doubted that in that respect Besser is as well qualified to make a good assessment as any other man in the city. When we saw the appointments made by the Mayor, the only question we considered in connection with them was the personal fitness of the appointees for the offices for which they had been designated. That is the only question that either the Mayor or the Councilmen had any right to consider. Besser is well qualified for the duties of assessor and ought in our judgment to be confirmed. The organ might have pushed its point against us much further and shown by the same mode of reasoning that our approval of Mr. Sylvester Simpson's appointment as city attorney was grossly inconsistent, for he has always been an outspoken Democrat while we have steadily opposed the "views" of the Democracy. We opposed Mr. Simpson himself, very recently, when he ran for a political office. But he is a good lawyer and an honorable and conscientious man, so far as we know, and these are the qualifications for city attorney. The organ has, in this matter, given an illustration of the breadth of its ideas, but beyond that we are unable to see what point it has gained. If the majority in the council choose to make a partisan matter of the selection of city officers, they have the power to do so; but that is not what they were elected to do, and we shall be surprised if they adopt the course pointed out to them by the organ and apply the party test. The only way for them to be consistent is to keep consistently and persistently out of and above partisanship in the discharge of the duties of their office.

The August number of the West Shore, just out, closes the first volume. The publisher has reason to congratulate himself on the success of his enterprise. He enters upon the second year of publication with brighter prospects, and signalizes the occasion with an offer of $[illegible] in prizes for essays, the first being a thirteen dollar copy of Webster's Unabridged Dictionary for the best composition written by boy or girl under eighteen years of age; the second a twelve dollar writing desk for best composition by boy or girl under thirteen; both these prizes to be awarded only to persons residing in Oregon and Washington Territory. The other prizes are coin for best articles on the resources of Oregon, best article on resources of Washington Territory, and best Christmas story. Awards to be announced Oct. 13th, in the pavilion at the State Fair grounds.

Gen. Rosser having written a letter praising Custer and censuring Col. Reno for not supporting him in the late fight with Sitting Bull, Col. Reno has written Gen. Rosser a letter in which he defends himself and brother officers from the charges made against them, and shows that he was in no way blamable for the disaster by which Custer and his men lost their lives. From Col. Reno's letter it is evident that Sitting Bull concentrated his forces against Custer and sent only enough of his men against Reno to hold him in check until Custer's annihilation had been accomplished. Then, probably, it was his intention to attack Reno with the whole body of Indians under his command, but the advent of Terry drove him off and saved Reno.

Will those who insist that extreme partisanship is compatible with fairness and candor, please explain how it is that Congressional committees wherever party interests are involved, are almost invariably divided on the party line in their findings of facts? We can [illegible] see how men who take radically different views on methods of legal construction can make the party line the line of their differences so far as conclusions and inferences are concerned; but it is not so easy to perceive how men whose vision is not blinded by party spirit can always divide on exactly the line of party interests, on plain questions of fact.

An eighteen pound salmon was taken a short time since in the Connecticut river and afterwards sold in Hartford for ten dollars. Salmon formerly were numerous in the rivers of the North Eastern States; but were exterminated by reckless fishing. The fish whose capture and sale is noted above is supposed to be one of a large number of small salmon put into the river three or four years ago by the State Fish Commission.

MAGNUM BONUM SHIRTS!

For sale by

FISHEL & ROBERTS,
Cor. First and Washington Sts.

THESE SHIRTS FULLY BEAR OUT THEIR name, and are regarded by all who have worn them to be par excellence of Shirts. The arrangement of making the Magnum Bonum, on which the Patent has been granted, is simply that of closing the side of the shirt all the way down to bottom of hem, and that of having the shirt opened in the center of the front and back about seven inches from the bottom hem. The undeniable advantages are briefly: It covers the legs and hips and does not work up uncomfortably, like an ordinary shirt; it always keeps its place, not only around the bosom but on the back; it does not contain any surplus material, and can be folded smoothly and laid away without creasing. It is the most convenient shirt for traveling by rail, carriage or horseback, because it works all the cloth downward in each drawer leg. It is manufactured from the very best material and is bound to supersede all other styles of shirts in use.

A simple trial of this Shirt will prove to the wearer all that is claimed for it.

CITY.

Attempt to Wreck a Train Thursday morning, we learn as the south bound mail train was speeding toward Roseburg an I near Turner's Station beyond Salem the engineer observed some obstructions on the track ahead Brakes were called for with a vengeance and the train brought to a stand in time to save the cars from being wrecked and the passengers from danger and probably death. The obstruction consisted of a number of heavy planks which were thrown across the track They were undoubtedly placed there by some miscreant for the purpose of wrecking the train This is the second diabolical attempt made within the last six weeks to throw the train from the track No effort should be spared to hunt down these would be murderers, (as there is certainly more than one person concerned) and to bring them to condign punishment We do not wish to be understood as advocating lynch law, but if summary justice was meted out to the guilty parties, without the slower legal processes of courts and juries, community would be rid of dangerous characters and the examples thus set would not be profitless

Passengers.—The steamship John L Stephens, which sailed hence for San Francisco last evening at 6 o clock, carried away the following passengers J Whitworth, wife and child, K Test, wife and 3 children Samuel Hirsch, A B Crossman, J F D Wrinkle J Whiteland, R. Goldsmith, P Lowengarth, F Pfeiffer, W J Adams, T B Morris H Ely, L. H Lewis, R M Allen, F M Merrill, Chas. Kane, T O Campbell Mrs. Captain Penny, Mrs J H Stone, B. H Sternfells and infant, A Beck, Wilkins, John Collins August Brishen, Grace Howard, W S Smith Mollie Wing, A. Neusitz, wife and child Wells Fargo messenger. Steerage—F Cary and J. W. Marcklein J Bullet, P Newby and Mrs. Schemansky and three children, Peters, Mrs. Dorharty and daughter, Lamp and wife, Pat McCowen, H Cunger, and wife, John Johnson Thos Keys, Jacob Lickenstein, Wm Dewer, wife and eight children, H. C. Fo an and three Chinamen

Five Days' Camp Life—In obedience to an order recently issued by Gov Grover, in the name of Brigadier General M. V Brown, the City Rifles will start this evening for Hillsboro, where they expect to go into camp for five days. The company will leave the city at 6 o'clock sharp and march the whole distance to Hillsboro. They expect to reach their destination Sunday morning at 9 o clock It is expected that there will be 35 men in the company. There will be target practice Tuesday afternoon, and a ball at Cornelius on the evening of that day. Prizes will be collected by W. A. Hart and Wm Church and are to be distributed on the return of the company to this city The Washington Guards will escort the City Rifles this evening beyond the city limits.

Oregon Products Shipped—Mr L Samuel, who was requested some time ago by those connected with the Mechanics' Industrial Fair at San Francisco to collect a number of Oregon productions and forward them to that city for exhibition, shipped various articles below on the steamer last evening. The samples sent away include choice brands of canned salmon, wool, wheat, flour, etc. The collection is quite handsome and will enable this State to make a creditable display of her productions there. As it is purely a "labor of love," Mr Samuel deserves much credit for his prompt and energetic action in the matter.

Sunday School Concert—The Hall street Sunday school will give their last concert for the current conference year to-morrow afternoon, commencing at 2:30. Unusual pains have been taken to prepare a first class programme, and it is hoped that this occasion shall be of more interest than any preceding it. Rev. J. H. Acton, the new editor of the Advocate, Rev. J. T. Wolf, and probably Bishop Harris will be present and deliver addresses. Visitors and strangers sojourning in the city are cordially solicited to attend. Admission free, and a very cordial invitation is extended

—Mr. J. Al Sawtelle, who visited here nearly two years ago and created a favorable impression by his very clever rendition of "Rip Van Winkle," is at present at Roseburg. Under date of the 17th he writes: "I write to inform you that I am on my way to your city again. I am playing with a company of six with which I have crossed the mountains doing very good business If I can get a hall I shall be in your city with a complete company the week previous. We go from here to Coos Bay, to be gone ten days."

Election.—An election was held at the regular meeting of the Amateur Musical Society, at which the following officers were elected for the ensuing year President, J. H. Zimmer; vice president, Charles B; secretary, Dr. R. G. Rex; corresponding secretary, Maj. W. H. Bell, treasurer, musical director, J H Brenner; directors, for one year, Dr. Rex, Major Bell, for two years, G. B. Upton, S Frank for three years, H Wegele and M. W. Fechheimer.

Kind Words.—In referring to the retirement of Rev. Dr. Dillon from the editorship of the Advocate, the Sentinel says Rev Isaac Dillon has retired from the Advocate and is succeeded by Rev. J. H. Acton, who has recently arrived from the Eastern States Our best wishes follow Brother Dillon into private life, as we differ from him only so far as we and he are ever at variance. In private life we always found him every inch a gentleman.

Got Off.—Late Thursday afternoon the steam tug Daisy was obtained and hitched on to the Pilot, which was partially launched on Monday afternoon. After pulling for a short time, the tug was loosened from the bed into which it had settled, and towed into deep water without the slightest injury to the hull. The Pilot is now tying at the dock where the boiler and machinery will be received on board

Off for Salmon River.—Tell Coleman, Ralph Welch and wife and Miss Hayden leave this morning for Salmon river They are fully equipped for a lengthy stay We are glad to see Ralph get away as he has proven himself worthy of a leave of absence and we are sure Mrs W will provide all with a good layout.

Studies Resumed—Studies will be resumed at St. Michael's College Monday 28th instant St. Joseph's school, in this city under charge of the Misses Showers will open on the 28th of this month On the same date studies will be resumed in the Academy of the Sacred Heart at Salem

Without Foundation—A report is in circulation that a smallpox patient was removed last night by the chief of police from one of the leading hotels in this city to the pest house. There is not the slightest foundation for such a report, as will be found by reference to the Change of Schedule—For the better accommodation of shippers and travelers the W. T & L. Co have put another steamer on the Willamette route and hereafter will dispatch one for Corvallis every Monday Wednesday and Friday See advertisement

Arrived in New York—By a dispatch received here last evening we observe that Mr Fred Currier of Portland, and wife arrived in New York on the 19th They will doubtless start homeward in a few days

Home Again—The remnant of the Owl party were in the river at a late hour last evening. They are no doubt in town by this time. The trip has been a pleasant one to all of the party.

BRIEF NOTES.

Jackson Bros at New Market Theater this evening

The government revenue cutter will soon be launched

There are 45 papers published in Oregon and 17 in Washington Territory

The Weekly Oregonian now ready in wrappers at the office counter.

A special meeting of the Common Council will be held next Monday evening

Unless the Pioneers can get a respectable time they will not go to Vancouver to day

Water street bridge in East Portland is being rapidly repaired and will soon be ready for travel

If an enterprising party would offer a handsome prize a sailing or scull race might be gotten up

The Bonita left here last evening, for the seaside It will be her last trip for the season we understand

The great illusionists to night at New Market Theater for the first time Some wonderful feats will be accomplished

Ira Mayfield an old printer while working in the Enterprise office a few days ago had his hand caught in the press, and painfully crushed

The form known as Charles IX in shoes is very popular This has a wide bar across the instep fastened with a small steel buckle with diamond points

Tickets by the steamers and railroad for the State Teachers Institute are good from Aug 22d to the 26th instead of 25th as announced in yesterday's paper

These nights are rather too cool for the festive mosquito Those obtrusive and inquisitive chaps will have to come out in Ulsters or stay at home

A TRIP TO CLATSOP.

"Deuceace" writing from the Seaside House under date of August 15th sends the following

We went because we wanted to and will return only because we have to If any one wishes better reasons he must invent them to suit himself We set out on that trip just as one starts in to read a book and determined to take our pleasures as they came along rather than reserve ourselves for those which might be but which we were not quite sure were in the distance 'Tis written that the pleasures of anticipation are greater than those of realization but we don't believe a word of it Who supposes that it is better even for a donkey that he should be eternally chasing the bunch of carrots rather than he should come up with it Let ours to catch pleasures as they fly and the sum of all earthly wisdom is contained in seizing the opportunity of to day rather than wait for the possibility of to morrow Sterne pursued his most sentimental journey ever ready as he tells us to walk four miles on foot to shake the hand of that man who giving up the reins of his imagination into the hands of his guide is content to be pleased not knowing why or caring wherefore Precisely in that spirit we embarked upon the Fanny Harvest last Friday morning and gave ourselves up to its accommodating others ready to be taken we did not know where to see we did not know what and to return we did not know when Nothing of unusual interest transpired during our trip down the Columbia All the fisheries being closed and the work of boxing and shipping stock alone being in progress

Early in the evening Astoria was reached and many noticeable and substantial improvements were observed to have been made there in the past year in fact so much as to have changed the entire appearance of the city Connection was made in the morning on the steamer Bonita and we proceeded on our journey We soon arrived at the landing and took stages for the seaside The most unobserving traveler passing over this route is struck with the magnificence of the vegetation which clothes the whole surface The vast extent and gloomy grandeur of the forest the gigantic size and venerable antiquity of the trees (and it is a long time since antiquity as the country lecturer remarked) the brilliancy of the foliage and the exuberance of the wild fruits, all show a land teeming with vegetable life Here is nature unspoiled and silence undisturbed A few years ago this impression was more striking than at present for now farms and houses are scattered over this region diversifying its landscapes and breaking in upon the characteristic wildness of its scenery Still there are wide tracts remaining in a state of nature and displaying all the savage luxuriance which first attracted the pioneer and to one accustomed only to a vista of brick walls and wooden buildings the same freshness of beauty and the same immensity though rudeness of outline which has been associated with the landscapes of Oregon

With eyes stung with sand and clothes caked with dust we discharged ourselves at our destination, the Seaside House, and were cordially received and hospitably entertained by mine host Mr J C Olmstead who knows not only how to keep a hotel but who is untiring in his exertions in anything that tends to enhance the comfort or add zest to the pleasures of guests sojourning at his summer resort His house is the favorite with Portland travelers judging from the number stopping here at present The mornings are passed by boating upon the creek trout fishing, catching crabs, and walks upon the beach, occasionally a ramble to the foot of misty old Tillamook which stands alone in loveless gloom and mocks the embracing wave During the afternoon all desirous of bathing avail themselves of the incoming tide and take an exhilarating dip in old Neptune's foam crested billows, and repair to the house with freshened appetites for no more sharpening or agreeable appetiser, can be found In the evening groups wend their way to the beach to see the sun as he sinks beneath Pacific's waves, "Not obscurely bright, but one flash of living, glowing light"

During the evening all frequent the parlor, and jollity, mirth, music and compressed sweetness are inextricably mixed The young ladies are all pretty, very pretty, polite and accomplished, but Mrs E Russell is the life and soul of the place With a face beaming with smiles, a memory stored with the brightest and suniest pieces ever read, she is ever ready to marshal her forces to direct an evening's entertainment.

Last Sunday divine service was held, Bishop Hills, of Victoria, V I, officiating,

Lieuts Leary and Howard, Gen. Howard and Major Boyle arrived to-day from Fort Stevens, and intend going fishing and hunting in the vicinity

Mr Joel Moran has the reputation of being the best bather here, often venturing beyond the breakers.

Mr C , of Portland, is the ladies cicerone. He is an accomplished professor of small talk and agreeable nothings and if assistance is not rendered him soon, he will, like the fly in the honey pot, die of too much sweetness

The weather is delightful and news items are scarce so I will say "Finis" a word delightful to a correspondent to write, and frequently not unpleasant to the reader

Jackson Bros will perform to night a number of the most mysterious and unfathomable illusions.

KALAMA ITEMS.

A correspondent writing from the above point under date of the 18th inst sends the following

A married lady living near this place has gathered and sold in this market this season, 75 gallons of wild blackberries realizing therefor 50 cents per gallon Who can beat that?

The mystery connected with the arrest mentioned in yesterday's paper has cleared up somewhat The parents of the girl separated some time ago The mother is residing in Portland, and the father in Astoria The girl having decided to leave her home at the latter place purchased and donned a suit of boy's clothes, and no doubt thought she would have an easy time getting away, but the telegraph spoiled that little plan She says her destination was Salem The father will arrive here to day and take the wayward one home

A negro fisherman named Jack a noisy and quarrelsome fellow came up here on the 7th with some colored friends and went on a spree. In this condition Jack began a quarrel with Wm Moore a peaceable colored man who lives here Moore to avoid trouble retreated into a house where he was followed by Jack with a cocked pistol Seeing that he could not escape he seized an ax and struck the ruffian a heavy blow with the back of it The pistol missed fire and the two clinched but before either were much hurt a constable arrived and took Jack to jail where he now is awaiting an examination

W L Adams M D, A M H D corner of First and Salmon streets, is curing the most inveterate chronic diseases of all kinds at a low price by medicated electric lightning cream baths, and by combining the German and French with the American improved practice, mixed with a little common sense His treatment is, in the main entirely original and works almost miracles as his numerous patients will attest Is extraordinarily successful in treating female complaints

OUR SALEM LETTER.

Salem Aug 18, 1876

Seated in our room this evening under the very "drippings of the sanctuary" and a compulsory listener to the preaching in the gospel tent we would write an interesting letter were the material on hand to do so News however is scarce with the average Capitolian and we can but wonder how newspapers can live and thrive in such a quiet burg. Were it not for the news columns of the Oregonian which reaches us regularly six times a week we would famish indeed for want of intelligence from abroad As it is now however we exist under what we call very favorable circumstances considering the location of our fair city

SMALLPOX CASE

San Francisco and Portland having already had the annual smallpox scare it behooved Salem to wake up and do likewise Having none of our own however the neighboring town of Gervais took compassion on us and found us a first class case He arrived here Tuesday noon and was met outside the city limits by representatives of the city council and respectfully invited to step right there He did and was eventually provided with an escort over to Chitwood's island where quarters were provided him and G W Boyer employed to wait on him He is getting along finely and no danger is apprehended from the contagion News of the case became exaggerated as it traveled, however and our country cousins in many instances imagine Salem is overrun with the disease They need have no fear in this case.

THE WILLAMETTE UNIVERSITY

This well known institution of learning reopens Sept 4th with the most flattering prospects Prof Gatch has been engaged for another year and will occupy the President's chair His name alone is sufficient guarantee that nothing will be left undone that will in any way tend to the advancement of pupils under his charge Prof Powell's chair has been vacated by him and Rev. L M Nickerson elected to the position Mr Nickerson has established an excellent reputation as an instructor in this State and the selection will undoubtedly prove a most excellent one The remainder of the Faculty will remain unchanged and we bespeak for the university a year of prosperity in every particular

STARTLING GOSSIP

Social circles were considerably astounded this morning by developments made within the hallowed precincts of Salem society Edward Lamport Esq brought suit against Mrs I W McCashin, charging her with manslaughter by procuring an abortion on the person of his wife—a sister of the defendant from whom he has been separated for some time past. The case came up for preliminary examination before H A Johnson J P this afternoon the court room being crowded to its utmost capacity. District Attorney Burnett assisted by Judge Bronaugh of your city appeared on behalf of the State and Knight & Lord, and L B Williams for the defense A number of witnesses were examined the testimony in many instances being 'broad' in the extreme The defendant was discharged and the case, we understand, paves the way for another and more interesting one, of which more anon

Don't Poison Your System

With such hurtful drugs as quinine calomel or blue pills but take instead that safe prompt and agreeable substitute, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which whether it is used to remedy or prevent malarial fevers overcome general debility, or to correct torpidity of the liver and bowels will in every case be found fully adequate to the wants of the sick and feeble It entirely removes dyspeptic symptoms and by stimulating the flow of gastric juice facilitates digestion and insures the conversion of food into blood whereby the system is efficiently nourished and regains its lost vigor This great vegetable restaurative has received the endorsement of men of science the press has repeatedly borne voluntary testimony to its excellence and the public has long since given it the preference to every medicine of its kind

A COUNTRY SCHOOL

Pretty and pale and tired
  She sits in her stiff backed chair
While the blazing summer sun
  Shines on her soft brown hair
And the tiny brook without,
  That she hears through the open door
Mocks with its murmur cool
  Hard bench and dusty floor

It seems such an endless round—
  Grammar and A B C,
The blackboard and the sums,
  And stupid geography
When from teacher to little Jem
  Not one of them cares a straw
Whether "John" is in any "case"
  Or Kansas in Omaha

But Jemmy's bare brown feet
  Are aching to wade in the stream,
Where the trout to his luring bait
  Shall leap with a quick bright gleam
And his teacher's blue eyes stray
  To the flowers on the desk hard by,
Till her thoughts have followed her eyes
  With a half-unconscious sigh

Her heart outruns the clock,
  As she smells their faint, sweet scent
But when have time and heart
  Their measure in unison blent?
For time will haste or lag
  Like your shadow on the grass,
That lingers far behind,
  Or flies when you fain would pass

Have patience, restless Jem,
  The stream and the fish will wait
And patience, tired blue eyes—
  Down the winding road, by the gate,
Under the willow shade,
  Stands some one with fresher flowers
So turn to your books again,
  And keep love for the after hours.

QUEEN LOG

HAM AS A NECESSARY INGREDIENT FOR A SANDWICH

Ours was a purely petticoat party, that summer at Crab Falls. Now and then a husband [illegible] up to spend Sunday, but to the eight of us who had no husbands these arrivals imported nothing, and for the rest of the time the [illegible] portion of the household was exclusively [illegible], except for sundry babies in knickerbockers, who did not count. Do not, however, think of us as miserable. A stray man or two would have been welcomed, but, since they came not, we amused ourselves very well without them. Our resources were various. [illegible] of the girls sketched, one or two painted. Carpathia May had a hobby for botany, and pursued it in such a pretty fresh flower [illegible] that we all, more or less, followed her [illegible]. Alice Weir and Marian Berkeley pro[illegible] They went off by them[selves] for whole days, and were real experts, [illegible] home baskets of the speckled darl[ings] [illegible] would have done credit to ex[perts]. [illegible] Then there was dear little [illegible] who read aloud in a voice [illegible] booklet, and was never weary [illegible]. Al[illegible] when there was no lack of [illegible], and we enjoyed ourselves very [illegible] of an [illegible]ional malcontent sigh [illegible] of what might have been had fate [illegible] a little kinder.

"We are all nice, you know," remarked [illegible] White, in an exasperated moment—[illegible] indeed, but, after all, it's all one [illegible]. It is [illegible] thing what a very little ham [illegible] to flavor whole mountains of bread [illegible] butter."

"[illegible] Shocking!" But some of us [illegible] with her.

[illegible] morning in late August, we [illegible] to lay aside all [illegible] and combine for a picnic. [illegible] it all—the hot climb [illegible] the [illegible] spice smell of the [illegible] into their shadow! [illegible] zone, all coolness and [illegible] with winds waking vibrant mur[illegible] underfoot melodious rust[illegible] wood rustlings; echoes, [illegible] half revealed and half [illegible], which pine woods hold, and which [illegible] is such perpetual fas[illegible]. It was infinitely refreshing after [illegible] and glare, and we flung our[illegible] the [illegible] needles with sighs of [illegible].

"[illegible] a dear [illegible] this is!" said Alice. "I [illegible] of it."

"Why don't we come here oftener—every [illegible]" [illegible] May, gushingly.

"Well, I can hardly say. There are other [illegible] to be considered. Duties sketching, [illegible] There's nothing to sketch here, [illegible]"

"[illegible]" put in one of the trouting [illegible] There's nothing to catch here, you [illegible]"

"I'm not so sure of that," retorted Alice. "[illegible] brook is pretty swift, and tumbles a [illegible], I can [illegible], but there are pools below [illegible] bold trout. I'm going to take a [illegible] by and by."

"It must take a trout of strong constitution [illegible] in Pluy brook," observed Carpathia. "I [illegible] think he'd be bruised black and [illegible] in five minutes."

"So he would in the rapids; but below it is [illegible]. I never heard of any there to be [illegible] but there may be."

"[illegible] hangeth on a may-be,'" quoted [illegible].

[illegible] I lost the thread of the conversation. [illegible] were elastic and soft as a mat [illegible] I was weary with the walk and the [illegible] light fanning wind lulled me un[illegible], and I fell asleep. Certain soft [illegible] aroused me, and a tickling in my ear. [illegible] turned and half sat up, but a hand [illegible] me down, and a laughing voice said

"Oh, be still a little longer. We've made [illegible] into a log—such a lovely log! Do keep [illegible]. You'll [illegible] it all if you move."

"But what is this in my ear?"

"Oh, nothing but a toad stool. There, I've [illegible] it, and I'll lift this lichen off your eye, [illegible] you can take a look at yourself. You can't think how beautiful you are."

The witches had covered me all over with a [illegible] shawl, and had covered that with [illegible] and [illegible] and strips of bark to simu[illegible] a half-decayed trunk, scattering pine [illegible] over all, and sticking into interstices [illegible] and fungi, till, as Amy said, it [illegible] look [illegible] like a log. Lastly, they [illegible] down a shawl in careless folds, set a [illegible] on my chest, and stood off to see [illegible], which they declared to be 'won[illegible].'

"No human being would guess," said Esther. "You'll impose on Leatherstocking himself. Oh, girls, do call Alice and Marian. They [illegible] be [illegible] before this about those wretched trout. Don't breathe a word, but just ask them to sit down on the log and make [illegible]selves comfortable."

"Oh me! Thank you," said I, speaking as well as I could through a mouthful of lichens.

"Oh, they shan't really sit down. Lie still—quite still, dear Dolly. Don't move an inch [illegible] we don't promise that you won't. It will be such fun to cheat Alice."

"Very well. I won't. But be quick. I'm comfortable enough now, but all this blanket shawl and bark may grow unpleasantly warm. I never realized before just how Daphne felt in the laurel."

"Good by, Daphne. Good by, Queen Log. We'll be back soon." With ringing laughter, off went the girls, Esther lingering to give a final touch to the lichen over my left eye. I smiled at myself at the odd position, but even as I smiled I dropped to sleep again. The day was irresistibly drowsy and there was something delightful in this wood slumber which even in deepest unconsciousness I never lost hold of. The last thing I saw as my eyelids fell was a broad ray of sun striking a half open parcel of forks and spoons which lay in the grass—Mrs Pendexter's property these, and careless enough of the girls to leave them thus. But what did it signify? No spot on earth could be safer than these summer woods under the shadow of the New Hampshire hills.

Those were my thoughts as I fell asleep. I was roused by sound of voices which even my locked senses recognized as unfamiliar. I opened my eyes. Two men were sitting on the ground close to me, but half turned away. They were shabbily clad, one in a velveteen coat and rough corduroy trousers, the other, whose clothes were dark, had a red handkerchief tied around his neck. This man had a thick beard and wild long hair veiling a pair of savage gypsy eyes. But it was the other face that frightened me most. It was a smug shaven face, but with an evil, cruel furtive look, which I do not know how to describe. Faint with sudden fear, I lay quite still. It seemed the only thing to do. But oh, where were the girls? I thought, what would happen if they came back?

"Give us that there basket off the log!" were the first words heard. It was the velveteen man who spoke, and the other reached out his hand and lifted the basket from its place close to my chin. I trembled lest its removal had made me visible, but the girls had arranged too artistically for that, and the men seemed to suspect nothing. It took only a moment to empty the basket which kind Mrs Pendexter had taken so much time to fill.

"Not a bad find," said the smug man, turning over the cold mutton and hard eggs, and speaking with his mouth full. "Pitch in, partner. May n't have another chance. Lord knows when."

Partner accepted the invitation cordially. Our luncheon disappeared down his throat in large morsels. "Hallo, here's a go," cried the smug man, making a sudden dive at the parcel of spoons and forks. He bit one of the spoons with his teeth, rapidly counted and dropped them into his pocket, the other man looking on. "Real?" asked he of the neckcloth.

"No mistake. Eight of each. That's twenty apiece. Stow away fast or some one'll be a coming." I hadn't supposed that even a wolf could stow faster, but at this warning the motion of the jaw was accelerated. As the men ate they talked. Their voices were smothered, but I caught now and then a sentence.

"Dog? Darn the dog. I as silence him."

"Yes but—" Then I lost the context.

"You're sure as to the blunt?"

"Saw it handed over—seventeen hundred and odd in bills. Took it home with him? Why, of course, you fool. These farmer fellows don't hang to banks. I tell you he wants it handy to lift his mortgage next week. Sure to be called for. Them Elkinses is always on time. Worry sharp gentlemen them kinses are."

"Stash your gab," said the gypsy. "Folks coming. Off's the word."

The men jumped to their feet, listened a second. One of them snatched up the shawl which lay over the supposed log, the other crammed the fragments of the feast into his pocket, and they were gone, the gypsy's foot just grazing my head as he went. I heard the girls' voices drawing nearer, but the long tension of fear had left me so faint and powerless that I could not stir, not even when they came in sight and stood close beside me.

"My! isn't it warm?" cried Esther. "Alice, you look half baked. Sit down and rest. Here is a convenient old log!" She caught sight of an empty basket which the men had flung aside, and stopped short with her mouth open.

"Yes," said Alice innocently. "I fancy we are all ready for luncheon. But where is the luncheon? And where is Dolly?"

At this moment I saw Marian making preparations to sit down on me. Self preservation gave me strength to stir, to roll over. The bark and ferns flew in all directions. Marian shrieked, but her arrangements for seating herself had gone too far to be affected by this sudden phenomenon. She came down heavily, and she and I and the shawls and the ferns, fungi and mosses became complicated into a confused and undistinguishable heap.

This the girls considered the best joke possible. With shouts of laughter they disentangled and picked us up. But at sight of my face there were exclamations.

"Why, Queen Log, what is the matter? Are you hurt? You are as pale as a sheet. You look as if you had seen a ghost. Don't stare so, Dolly. Do speak. What is it?"

I tried to speak, but, instead, burst into a fit of nervous crying. The girls, frightened and perplexed, thronged about me. In the midst of their rapid questions an awe-struck voice was heard saying, "Where are the spoons? I put them just here. I am sure I did. And here is the very napkin they were in."

"Oh," I sobbed, "those men took them away."

"Men! What men?"

Then it all came out, and the circle of pale faces and wide-open eyes which attended my somewhat incoherent explanation struck me as so funny that I went to the other extreme of feeling, and, before I knew it, was laughing as hard as I cried. "And you lay still and never moved?" gasped Rosa. "How brave! I never could have done that. I should have given one scream, and then fainted away."

"That would have been truly judicious," remarked Esther, dryly. "But the question now is, What shall we do?"

"Do?" wailed Rosa; "why get out of these dreadful woods as fast as we can, to be sure. Robbers and murderers! I never heard anything so awful. Why did we come? Oh, how horrid it is not to have any man to take care of you!"

Her alarm infected the boldest of us, and I regret to say our progress homeward partook of the nature of a stampede. Mrs Pendexter, who was rolling out tea biscuit in the buttery, was taken all aback by our sudden appearance. "Sakes alive! I want to know! This does beat all!" were her remarks during our recital. "Such a thing wasn't never heard of in this country before. Elkins! that's the squire. And the man with the seventeen hundred dollars must be young Mr Dennett on the Brush hill road. He's a sort of a stranger, you know. Mr Pendexter was a saying that he'd sold out all his hay at a good price to pay off his mortgage."

"Where is Mr Pendexter?" said Esther, promptly. "He must go over and give this Mr Dennett warning at once."

"Ts, ts, ts," clucked Mrs Pendexter. "He's off in the medder lot, two miles away, and so's all the rest. There ain't a man about the place, Miss Esther."

"There never is," put in Rosa, despairingly. "I never saw anything like it! Oh, how horrid, horrid it must be in the land of the Amazons! I can't think why Joaquin Miller should write a poem about them."

"How far is it to Mr Dennett's?" said Esther.

"It's a good three miles, but a straight road all the way. Right through the woods. You can't miss it."

"Through the woods!" we all shivered, but Esther went on bravely.

"Very well. Amanda can harness the old gray, can't she? Please tell her to, and I'll drive over to Mr Dennett's. Girls, which of you will go with me?"

Nobody answered.

"Dolly?"

"Yes," I said with a sinking heart. "I'll go."

The girls wept and wailed, but in vain.

"Don't be silly," said Esther. "Of course somebody must go."

"Well, I do admire your courage," said Mrs Pendexter, "and there's this about it, there ain't no real danger. They're always scared at daylight"—speaking of the genus burglar as of a wolf. "You won't see your men again, Miss Dolly, I promise you. If I wasn't sure of that, I wouldn't let you go nohow."

Fortified with this we set off, concealing our inward tremors as best we might. The road seemed long, but at last we came to a pretty brown cottage, with a little lawn, flower beds and an air of taste and refinement new to us in that region. A handsome, sun burned young man, who was cutting grass with a hand mowing machine, came forward to meet us, and raised his straw hat with the unmistakable air of a gentleman. Esther explained our errand, Mr Dennett listening intently, never taking his eyes off her as she spoke.

"I am probably the person meant," he said. "At least, I have the sum alluded to in my house to pay a debt which falls due next week." He paused and thought for a moment silently.

"I wonder you were not afraid to drive over to this lonely place," he said, smiling.

"We were a little, but perhaps," faltered I.

"Yet you came. How very good of you! You must let me drive you back."

"Oh, pray don't leave your house unguarded! Those men may come, you know."

"Oh, there is no danger now. Fore-warned is fore-armed."

He called a man, gave some orders, went into the house a moment, and we were off. Dear me, how safe we felt all at once. The dark nooks had long lost their terrors, and the return drive was delightful. Next day Mr Dennett came to us to tell us that the thieves had been caught red handed and were safely lodged in the county jail. He had recovered Mrs Pendexter's silver also, and altogether there was so much to hear and to discuss that nobody wondered at his coming yet another and another day, and finally every day. It was surprising how much more interesting life seemed to several of us. I was more than once reminded of Esther's simile of the ham and the bread and butter. Before long, however, it became evident to whom belonged the chief slice of the sandwich, and just before we all broke up in early October Esther, rosy and flushed, stole into my room and held before my eyes a finger on which glittered a new ring set with a small diamond.

"So," I said, "you really have. And do you like him very much?"

"I like him? I should think so."

"And you don't dislike the idea of living in the backwoods all your life?"

"No, not very much. Besides, we shan't stay in the woods always. Now and then we mean to run away."

"And you're not afraid?"

"Afraid, with Will to take care of me? I should think not! Oh, Dolly, give me another kiss! Only think, if you hadn't been a log that day I should never have seen him. How strangely things turn out. There that's for Dolly, and that's for Queen Log. Bless her always! How droll it was! Vive la reine."—Harper's Bazar.

VALUABLE LANDS FOR SALE.

600,000 Acres in EASTERN OREGON!

For Farming and Grazing Purposes.

THESE LANDS ARE SITUATED IN WASCO Grant and Baker counties and are offered for sale in such sized tracts, not less than 160 acres, as purchasers may desire. Here is afforded a most favorable opportunity to immigrants and settlers seeking homes and low priced lands to acquire both on the most reasonable terms. These lands are excellent for farming and grazing. On most of the tracts no grubbing or other preparation of the land for plowing is requisite. A growth of nutritious grass covers the uplands, affording the best of pasturage, while in the valleys and bottom lands the grass can be mowed and made into hay. Living springs and streams water the lands in various directions. The uplands or rolling lands can be put into crops with the most satisfactory return. Fruit, particularly peaches, plums, grapes, apples, pears and cherries, as well as the smaller fruits, can be grown in great abundance. The climate of Eastern Oregon is very healthful. Flourishing towns are located at convenient points for traffic, the mails are regularly conveyed throughout that section, and a prosperous population is already established, occupied in farming, stock growing, mining and various other pursuits.

Terms $1 25 per acre and upwards, according to quality and quantity. Interest ten per cent. on deferred payments.

For further information apply in person or by letter to GEO I CURRY Agent, Cree's Building, Stark st, bet Front & First.

LAND FOR IMMIGRANTS.

Choice Farms for Sale.

4,000 ACRES, IN QUANTITIES TO SUIT PURCHASERS.

230 ACRES DUE SOUTH AND ADJOINING the Railroad Depot at Salem, all under cultivation and suitable for grain or vegetables.

940 Acres, four miles southeast of Salem on the railroad, with Mill creek running through it. This is the choicest farming land in Marion county, with fine springs, consisting in part of the old Ree tor donation claim, on which I raised the past year fifty bushels of wheat and three tons of timothy per acre. The first crop of oats ever raised on part of this land measured ninety four bushels per acre, grain weighed and ground chained by Mr Alfred Stanton of Salem.

2,700 Acres of prairie and light brush land, with timber for farming purposes, bounded by the Willamette River for four miles, beside the lake on the east, boat landings all along the river, commencing four miles north of Salem—all choice grain land—the largest and most suitable body of land to be found in the Willamette Valley to be purchased by a colony. To be sold from $[illegible] to $[illegible] per acre. This land will all be immediately resurveyed and can be sold in larger or small parcels to suit purchasers. It can be subdivided to the best possible advantage, and I can offer any person or persons or colony of persons desiring to purchase homes in the best part of the Willamette Valley, near the city of Salem and within reach of the best [illegible] with respect to markets, greater advantages, on more favorable terms than they can ever expect to realize again.
